Snapshots

Floris De Cock

As an exchange student in Taiwan, what stood out most to me is the incredible kindness of people, the strong sense of safety, and the unique food culture. Locals are always willing to help, and in my four months here, I've felt completely safe—even seeing people leave belongings unattended. Eating is also very convenient, with affordable meals readily available at convenience stores and campus dining halls. At NYCU, I had the freedom to choose diverse courses, including those from the Global MBA program, while also enjoying campus life, student clubs, and trips to Taipei. Spending half a year here has truly been one of the best decisions of my life.
